Saturday Morning, November 2, 1861.

Col. Burr.-We are pained to learn that this gallant officer, Col. of the 18th Mississippi Regiment, who was wounded in the hip at the battle of Leesburg, died from the effect of his wound on Saturday last. He leaves a wife and five or six children to mourn his loss. May God, who tempers the wind to the shorn lamb, be their comfort and support, in this their hour of affliction. Col. Burt's remains were expected to arrive at Jackson last night.

CAPT, A. P. Hill,-We learn from the telegraph that our fellow-citizen, Capt. Hill, who received a flesh wound in the arm at the battle of Leesburg, is on his way home, and will arrive probably tonight (Friday.)

The gallant soldier will be warmly received by his many admiring friends.

From the N. O. Picayune. A Southern Woman's Song.

Stitch, stitch, stitch, Little needle swiftly fly. Brightly glittering as you go; Every time that you pass by Warms my heart with pity's glow. Dreams of comfort that will cheer Through winter's cold the volunteer; Dreams of courage you will bring,

Stitch, stitch, stitch. Swiftly little needle fly Through this flannel, soft and warm ; Though with cold the soldier sigh, This will sure keep out the storm. Set the buttons close and tight, Out to shut the winter's damp: There'll be none to fix them right

Smile on me like flowers in spring.

In the soldier's tented camp. Stitch, stitch, stitch: Ab! needle, do not linger; Close the thread, make firm the knot; There'll be no dainty finger To arrange a seam forgot. Though small and tiny you may be, Do all that you are able;

As says the pretty fable. Stitch, stitch, stitch, Swiftly little needle glide, Thine's a pleasant labor; To clothe the soldier be thy pride, While he yields the sabre. Ours are tireless hearts and hands; To Southern wives and mothers. A I who join our warlike bands

Are our friends and brothers.

A lion once a mouse set free,

Stitch, stitch, stitch, Little needle swiftly fly, From the morning until eve. As the moments pass thee by, These substantial comforts weave. Busy thoughts are at our hearts-Thoughts of hopeful cheer-As we toll till day departs For the noble volunteer.

Quick, quick, quick, Swifter little needle go; From our home's most pleasant fires Let a loving greeting flow To our brothers and our sires. We have tears for those who fall, Smiles for those who laugh at fear: Hope and sympathy for all-Every noble volunteer. Natchitoches, La., Oct., 1861.

Dear Sir :- I take pleasure in testifying to the curative effects of your Liniment-My negro boy, sixteen years of age, has been unable to use his arm for fifteen months; I consulted sev-eral physicians, who pronounced it paralysis. I tried various kinds of stimulating Liniments to no effect, in fact, the boy's arm was fast wasting away. In this condition I sent him to your house, and, to my utter astonishment, in less than four weeks the boy returned home with perfect use of his arm, and has done good work ever since.
